Integral ecology was inspired by the way that people and the natural environment are inextricably linked. Every element of human existence is impacted by this interdependence, including the political, economic, social, cultural and religious spheres. Thus, actions and values based on these factors directly affect how people coexist and divide the resources of the world.

To consider the Integral Ecology of our planet requires a variety of disciplines that engage each other in an integrative way. Dialogues and brainstorming sessions will unfold the real situation and insights for future, as these are explored from different angles.

The International Conference on Integral Ecology for a New Humanity in Indian Context is a platform for analyzing the issues of human-nature interactions in the past, sustainable development, climate change, global warming and role of agriculture in environment conservation through the broader framework. Thus, discussions about cultivating lifestyles that embody a new humanity have a strikingly prophetic tone at this crucial point of history. Moreover, the conference will analyze the much debated encyclical letters of Pope Francis, Laudato Si and Fratelli Tutti in Indian context.

Institute of Food and Agricultural Ethics (IFAE)

IFAE is a venture to promote the study and research in the field of Food and Agricultural Ethics. The institute is owned and managed by the Diocese of Thamarassery. Since ethical issues related to food and agriculture affects everyone equally, we work irrespective of caste, colour and creed. We are first of its kind in India which is exclusively dedicated for the study and research in the field of food and agricultural ethics.
